WARRANT ASKED FOR.

Criminal Action Against the Broadway Dry Goods Merchant.

Charged With a Felony in Attempting to Intimidate His Employees.

The Penalty Is From Two to Five Years in the Penitentiary.

Prosecution Will Be Pushed by the Democratic State Committee.

Mr. Crawford Now Regrets His Hasty Action in Discharging His Free Silver Clerks.

Attorney Charles S. Noland Applied for two warrants Tuesday against Dugald Crawford, the Broadway merchant, charging him with attempting to influence the votes of T. D. Forcher and Phil Gradwohl.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Johnson went to Mr. Noland's office at 1 p. m., but deferred action until 2 p. m., when he said he would consider the matter at his own office in the Four Courts.

As ex-Gov. Charles P. Johnson was obliged to go to Warrensburg, Mo., he turned the details of the case over to Attorney Charles T. Noland.

Mr. Noland had engagements with five of the discharged men to meet him at his office at 10:30. O'Hanlon, Wren, Forcher and Gradwohl were on hand. Together they all went to the Four Courts, where Attorney Noland held a private consultation with Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Johnson.

The latter was very busy and did not take time to examine the witnesses which Noland had with him. He told the lawyer, however, to take the blanks and prepare the information at his own office. Col. Johnson promised to meet him there at 12:30 and talk the case over with the witnesses.

He intimated that his duty would oblige him to issue the warrant.

Mr. Noland then repaired to his office with the four witnesses. They were joined there by Freundlich, another of the discharged employees. They all sat around and discussed their troubles while the attorney went to work.

He chose the cases of T. D. Forcher and Phil Gradwohl as the strongest to present. This is particularly true of Forcher, as J. McNeil overheard the entire conversation between Mr. Crawford and Forcher.

This gives an additional corroboration to Forcher's testimony, a very essential point in court.

Instead of drawing up the information under any of the old acts, which have already been published in the Post-Dispatch, Attorney Noland based his allegations on the new law, passed by the Republican Legislature at its last session. Part of article VII, section 6, of the laws of the Thirty-eighth General Assembly relative to elections reads as follows:

If at any election hereafter held in any such city, any person shall . . . by force, threat, menace, intimidation, bribery or reward, or offer or promise thereof, or otherwise unlawfully, either directly or indirectly influence or attempt to influence any elector in giving his vote;

A Manly Letter From Dugald Crawford

Office of D. CRAWFORD & CO.,
Cor. Broadway and Franklin Av.,
St. Louis, Oct. 13, 1896.
115 Worth St., New York.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In this morning's Republic an editorial appears commenting on my half-page announcement. The writer of this editorial has evidently misinterpreted my statement and arrived at the conclusion that my announcement refuted the statement made by the men who left my employ on last Saturday. In no way have I intended to reflect on the veracity of these gentlemen in my announcement. The statement made is that I have never in hiring any employees been influenced by, or have asked concerning his or her political or religious belief, and I regret that any one would interpret my announcement to reflect in any way on the veracity of my former employees. I have invited all of the men to return to my store and to occupy their former several positions without prejudice as regards the future, and without loss of salary since they left my employ.

A man in anger often makes mistakes, but I do not believe he loses any of his manhood by admitting his error. I desire every man in my employ to vote as he pleases, but I believe that every man who carefully studies existing conditions should vote for McKinley. To allow all of my employees to vote as they please and have ample time to do so I have decided to close the store of D. Crawford & Co. at 1 p. m. on Nov. 3.

D. Crawford,
D. Crawford & Co.

Dispatch takes pleasure in reproducing, one reason being that so few St. Louisans read the Globe-Democrat that Mr. Crawford's published statement would be otherwise wasted.

Those who read the statement will see that Mr. Crawford corroborates all that the Post-Dispatch has printed about the discharge of his employees. Here is the Globe-Democrat interview in full:

Mr. Crawford was seen at his home last evening, and readily consented to talk about the matter to a Globe-Democrat reporter. He was in a good humor, and as he greeted the newspaper man, said: "Well, my boy, I have not been arrested, as you can readily see, and furthermore I have little fear of any such action being taken. I have done nothing unlawful or that would subject me to arrest, but hearing that such action was contemplated I consulted my attorney. Having nothing to conceal in relation to my action, I told him the circumstances exactly as they were, and he assured me that nothing that I have done could be construed as a violation of law."

When asked for a complete statement of the matter, Mr. Crawford said: "First of all, I want it distinctly understood that at no time have I attempted to coerce or intimidate men in my employ, nor have I ever asked any man to vote for McKinley or any other man. I have always considered myself capable of managing my own business, and have exercised my own discretion in doing those things which my judgment has dictated. I have never in the papers, or in any other way, appeared in the papers, or in any other way, discharged a number of employees Saturday evening, as this morning's Post-Dispatch says. I have nothing to say about that, either affirmatively or negatively. I do know that some newspapers which do not receive large advertising contracts from business houses attempt to force the proprietors to expense their money in that way."

"It was a week ago Saturday when I returned from my summer residence in the North, but perhaps I had better go back to the real beginning of the business in my own mind. It was over two months and a half ago that I first began to realize the seriousness of the issues involved in the present political campaign. While our business, like every other concern in the country, was feeling the depression of the times, I was congratulating myself in the belief that McKinley would be elected and then we would have the prosperous times of the Harrison administration. I had a talk with a number of men, some of whom I afterward discharged, and spoke about this matter. I often consult with the heads of the different departments in our store, in fact, do so at least once a month. When the boys told me that their sales were not up to what they would like to have them and what they should be, I would say, 'Never mind, boys, it will all be changed and things will pick up when McKinley is elected.' I did not ask them what their politics were, or who they were going to vote for, but they all acquiesced in what I said and agreed that with the triumph of sound money would come better times."

"I was led to believe that they were all going to vote for McKinley. In consequence of their talk I acted upon the impression that they were all going to vote for McKinley. I was very much surprised when I learned that they were not. I was very much surprised when I learned that they were not. I was very much surprised when I learned that they were not."

"When I returned from Canada a week ago Monday I remarked in the office: 'Well, I don't believe there is a man in the store who will not vote the sound money ticket.' Several of the men standing around in the office smiled significantly, and one of them said: 'I guess you don't know the boys in the store very well or you wouldn't say that.' It was natural for me to inquire what he meant, and I was very much surprised when I learned that they were not. I was very much surprised when I learned that they were not."

THE GOLD BALLOON.

"The gold dollar has been raising in its purchasing power for the past twenty years. Legislation has created a new demand for gold, and this increased demand has so raised the price of an ounce of gold, that the dollar buys more and more of the products of toil. It is getting beyond the reach of those who produce the wealth of the world. The balloon dollar is a good thing for the financier who happens to be in the basket, but farmers and laboring men are not in the basket. The dollar must be brought to earth again, where it can come into closer contact with the people as a whole."—W. J. BRYAN.

THE CASTLES IN THE DOCK.

RICH CALIFORNIANS, ACCUSED OF THEFT, GIVEN A HEARING.

MRS. CASTLE WAS HYSTERICAL.

Again Remanded and Bail Fixed at One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—At Marlborough Street Police Court to-day Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Castle, the wealthy residents of San Francisco, who were arrested at the Hotel Cecil on Tuesday last charged with stealing a quantity of furs, etc., from various dealers in this city, were arraigned on remand.

After a short hearing they were again remanded for a week, bail being allowed in the sum of $150,000.

MADE A SCENE ON BOARD OF TRADE.

BROKER A. E. BABCOCK REFUSED ADMISSION TO THE FLOOR.

STORMED AND DREW A CROWD.

His Application for Membership Turned Down Because of Alleged Bucket-Shop Connections.

An exciting scene occurred at the main entrance of the Merchants' Exchange shortly after the opening Tuesday morning. A. E. Babcock was refused admission to the floor by Doorkeeper James Newell. Mr. Babcock demanded an explanation.

The doorkeeper replied that he had orders from superior officers and he would obey them.

Mr. Babcock's anger knew no bounds. He began a tirade against the officials and members of the Exchange. His loud and angry tones attracted a crowd, and for the while business on 'Change was stopped.

Nearly a month ago Mr. Babcock applied for admission as a member of the exchange. His application was properly made out, indorsed and the usual fee accompanied it. The application was referred to the Membership Committee. Pending the action of the committee, in accordance with the usual custom of the exchange, Babcock was admitted to the floor and was allowed the same privileges as though he had been duly elected.

For several days there has been talk among the members relating to an alleged connection of Babcock's with a bucket shop on Third street. It was stated Babcock not only did not deny his connection with the bucket shop, but openly flaunted it.

In view of these rumors, the scene Tuesday morning was not altogether unlooked for.

After being refused admission Babcock called on Secretary Morgan and demanded the reason for barring him. Mr. Morgan informed him his application for membership had been rejected. The fee he had paid was tendered him, but Mr. Babcock indignantly refused it.

Turning to President Spencer, Mr. Babcock in a loud tone demanded an explanation. He said that a criminal was not convicted without a hearing, and that to be denied membership was an impeachment of his character. He demanded to know how his application had been rejected, and said by keeping him out he was prevented from earning his living.

President Spencer replied that the application had been rejected, and that the directors simply ruled the committee.

Mr. Henry H. Warren, Chairman of the Membership Committee, declined the matter. He admitted, however, that the committee reported adversely on Babcock's application.

Mr. Babcock stood around the entrance to the hall all morning. He was still angry when a Post-Dispatch reporter met him. "This arbitrary action of the Board of Trade does me a great injustice," he said. "I have many friends on the floor, and I am unable to attend to them. It is likely to damage me, too. In the history of the organization only three men have been rejected. I know it is only the personal enmity of a few men who have kept me out."

"I was a member of the exchange many years ago. I lost a fortune and sold my membership. Then I went into other business and was getting on my feet. Now I am there again without being given a chance to defend myself."

Asked about his connection with a bucket shop Mr. Babcock indignantly denied it. "I am a member of the Chicago Exchange," he said, "and do considerable business here for the organization. I have a private wire to my place of business and buy and sell on the curb for men in Chicago. I represent them. But I am not connected with a bucket shop, and never have been."

ON A JAMBOREE.

Young Curtis of Chicago Raises Trouble in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—E. K. Curtis, son of the millionaire dry goods dealer of Chicago, was arrested at an early hour yesterday morning for creating a disturbance at the Golden West Hotel. His appearance denoted that he had been on a protracted spree, and, at the request of several of his friends, the arresting officer allowed him to be taken to the receiving hospital, where he was cared for. Curtis arrived here several weeks ago with his bride and rented apartments in Van Ness avenue. According to Curtis' story, on Sunday evening, finding his wife's trunk rifled of several ready dresses and she missing, he armed himself with a revolver and made a round of the hotels in a search for her. Mrs. Curtis was finally located at the Golden West and Curtis, failing to arouse her, tried to force entrance to her room. He was soon subdued and threatened to "do" for himself and returned to him.

TO MARRY A MARQUIS.

BRYAN'S SPEECH TO THE LADIES.

UNIQUE AND FORCIBLE EFFORT
AT MINNEAPOLIS.

AN APPEAL TO THE HEART.

Women Living in Comfort Urged to Think of Country Homes Blasted
by Gold Mortgages.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 13.—Perhaps the most unique feature of Mr. Bryan's visit to Minneapolis was his address last night at the Lyceum to an audience made up exclusively of women, and presided over by a woman. There were 2,000 women present, and Mrs. Frank A. Valesh presided. When Mr. Bryan arrived about 10 o'clock the ladies arose en masse, waved their handkerchiefs and flags, clapped their hands and called his name, and, in fact, did everything men might have done except give three cheers. Mr. Bryan said:

Ladies—This is a novel experience, not only new that I am unaccustomed to address you, but also new in that I have to compete against another "boy orator" who has been appointed by the ladies' association to deliver the complimentary address. I am taking comfort from the fact that all persons I have the sympathy of mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters are here, and therefore I am afraid that the mother's sympathy would go out to the smaller of the two.

(Laughter.)

And I confess that I cannot blame you, because I know how much more you would award him the prize even though I contestant myself against him. I believe that if he were to win, it would be as a candidate she addressed his remarks to the entire assembly on some economic question, and yet I offer no objection.

On the contrary, I deem it not only my privilege but my duty to share with you the experience teaches me that the mother is the most important person in the family. (Applause.) In fact I would rather have the wife on my side in the beginning than the husband at the end of the campaign. I could only have one. (Applause.) And I think I can assure you that if I have the wife, I am almost sure to have the husband before the campaign is over, and if I have the husband, I am almost sure to lose him. (Laughter and applause.)

The lady who was canvassing down in Nebraska the other day gave utterances to one of the best things which I caught at the campaign has evoked. She was canvassing at our house to get some literature upon the silver question to circulate. As she went from place to place and while there she said that she had a brother who was a gold man without gold. I thought she must have said she could understand how a man could be a gold man without gold, but she could not play the gold card as well as we can. (Applause and laugh.)

"I told my friends that it's a gold condition where you've got to have gold men with gold brains. You can't have a good standard if it's a gold standard. The gold standard is the basis of the people's lives. It's the gold standard that makes the grove of life. It's the gold standard that makes the fact that the gold standard appeal to the heart."

so much interest in this campaign, the reason why the wives are feeling a deeper interest than they usually feel, because they know their husbands will fight for the standard. They know that, instead of being able to get by with a low standard, the gold standard has become a measure of deferred hope, and hope deferred maketh the heart sick. The question is whether it is deep to be understood by any American citizen. Every great political question is every great economic question is at last a great moral question. Right or wrong, right or wrong of the question are determined. Questions are not settled until we have decided what is right and wrong, and when those principles are finally comprehended, then the people will follow. The people are studying this question, studying it as they study the general good. The people are studying this question, studying it as they study the general good. Maybe, studying it as they have not studied any question before in your life time or mine. So you must commence at the bottom and study up.

Now, I want to give you some principles

Now, what is the first great principle? It is that the value of a dollar depends on the number of dollars in circulation. The more dollars dearer or cheaper by changing the quantity. Now, this is a simple proposition. I have studied it and when you have understood it, you will understand the rest of the subject. Suppose that we were walked in and had enough wheat in the inclosure to last us a year. Suppose that we took up wheat for consideration, wheat was worth a dollar a bushel; and suppose that wheat was gathered up and taken care of. Suppose we owned one pile and another woman owned another pile and suppose that the owner of the pile for which we had given the papers that that pile of wheat had been sold for, should come and say, "I am tired of having both piles for their value, suppose all must be fed from this pile. I will take the wheat from the other pile, a bushel of wheat in this pile would advance in value. Why? Because the demand for wheat is greater than the supply. I will take my pile of wheat out in two. Now what do you learn? That the lady who owns this pile of wheat, who has sold her pile of wheat. She will be glad that it was the other pile that burned instead of hers. (Applause.)

Now that is a simple question. Let me apply it to the silver question. We have about four billions of silver money and about four billions of gold money in the world. Suppose we have a pile of gold and make the other pile do the service of both. What is the result? The demand for money is the same and the supply of money is cut out in two. The value of the value of each dollar will rise. When wheat rises in value, a bushel of wheat buys more money; when money rises in value, a dollar buys more wheat. But what is the second result? The people who own the money, or who own contracts payable in dollars, profit by the rise, and they are glad of the rise. (Applause and laughter.)

The gold standard means dearer money and dearer money means cheaper property and cheaper property means hard times and hard times means more people out of work. The gold standard means more people out of work, more people out of work means more people destitute, more people destitute means more people criminals. The gold standard means more criminals.

It has been said that woman is the conqueror of the world. I believe and endorse the proposition. I believe that women can and do do great things. I believe that women can and do get the world out of its mire and into a better state. I believe that women can and do get the world from wrong probably with more clearness, more quickly than men, because they are more sensitive to the wrong things which may prevent an understanding of the truth of these questions. And I believe that women can and do do great things to appeal to you women—You women who are interested in your sons and your daughters, who are interested in the future of your race, who are interested in the future of your country, who pass your influence on the side of a gold standard, which may mean more poverty, more want, more hunger, but no more poverty and misery for the many. (Applause.) And remember this: Live your life so that you can say, "I can't control the destinies of those you love, but I can control the destinies of all contingencies of the future, and I will."

them money and be sure that to their remotest generation that money would produce the same amount and that you would feel indifferent, but your friends, you can't do it. There is only one thing that is sure to produce the same amount of money for the government; that instead of giving favors to few, will protect every one in the enjoyment of the same amount of money, and of happiness, and you have given to your children the richest heritage. (Applause.)

THE SPEAKER: I think that each of the gold standard as quickly as the country can get it, and that it is the only way of enjoying the comforts of life. I want you to give one moment's thought to the mother who has a child, and who knows that a lot has been made harder and whose life has been made darker by the gold standard. You have to give up the child, and you find that the gold standard never brought a ray of light to the child, and that the gold standard never gave inspiration to those who are downcast. According to Mr. Roosevelt, the gold standard is the only explanation of this scheme to destroy half the money of the world will ultimately end in the death of the human race. It is more misery than all the wars, pestilences and famines that have ever afflicted the human race. I believe he was right.

Go into the homes where the mortgage is paid before the owner removes the home where the husband and wife started out with that laudable ambition to own a home. You will find that the majority have been saved and expected to be able to pay the balance, but the property has fallen, work has become scarce and they have given up the idea of owning a home. They have no friends, that all they have has been gained by those who hold a false promise of profit by the activities of the people. (Applause.) Do you think that the majority of the people have friends, no condition of bondage was ever permanent. The taskmaster has always been there that if you do not want to complain then in his custody would be saved, but you will find that the majority of the taskmaster may the cause of complaint, and the taskmaster is never wise enough to see the cause of complaint, lasts there will always be agitation.

You tell me that the gold standard can be changed. Mr. McLean has said that he will change my opinion of the Almighty's love before I will ever believe he intended the human race to toll while a few should grow rich. I have said that I would like to change my opinion of the Almighty's love before I will ever believe he intended the human race to toll while a few should grow rich. I have said that I would like to change my opinion of the Almighty's love before I will ever believe he intended the human race to toll while a few should grow rich.

Do not despise these people. The Bible tells you that when Christ preached, those who devoured widows' houses would turn gladly, and yet, my friends, these are the common people who tell you to-day as they tell you that the common people of this nation are the backbone of the nation. The Democratic Institution is the nation (Applause).

The common people who appreciate our form of government. It is the common people who produce the wealth in this country. It is the common people who are the backbone that in time of war are willing to sacrifice their lives in their nation's defense. Don't the friends of the common people question their capacity for government? Don't the friends of the common people say that when they cry out for relief they may have no cause.

Let us realize that we are passing through a crisis in human affairs. This is no content. We have arrayed in this contest the common people of the world against the common people of this country. Against us are those forces which control the world and which are the industrial-money, the industrial—but on our side is simple justice.

sons to be permitted to enter life with an even chance, without becoming favorites of the great and powerful. We want our children and our children to have an equal chance in the race for life and not to be crushed by the weight of the inheritance of wealth which are trampling upon the rights of men. We want this nation to follow our forefathers' intended. We applaud.

This battle is fought not here alone, it is fought for mankind. We fight upon the sea on which side victory shall come. Show me a man who is not responsible for showing me the effects of vicious legislation; show me a man who has confidence in the law; show me a man who is not a tyrant; show me a man, I care not where he lives, who is offering up a silent prayer for our succor.

Show me the Pharos of the world who is not a tyrant; show me a man who is without straw; show me the oppressor; show me those privileged classes intrenched behind the law; show me a man who oppresses you people, I care not in what nation they live, who are not only sympathizing with, but are actually fastening upon our opponents fasten the gold standard upon the

I am not here to tell you upon which side your influence should be cast, but I am here to appeal to you to recognize the principles through which we are passing, recognize the issues at stake, recognize the tremendous task ahead of us, and then follow me and then throw your influence where you think it will do most good.

The judgment of the American people—I am willing to trust the conscience of the American people—will determine whether our people made their consciences and they were always been sufficient, and I have no doubt that they will be satisfied. The issue will be settled now or hereafter, the judgment will be made by the American people. It is sufficient to guide us right, to make our Government better, and to make our people more united than ever before.

Let me say to you that the gold standard has tried to confine to such a small portion of our people, and let me say to you:

THROUGH MINNESOTA

Brief Talks by Mr. Bryan on the Way to Duluth.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Oct. 12.—Wm. J. Bryan began early this morning on his actual work for this week's campaign. The special car Idler was pulled out of Minneapolis with the Bryan party aboard at 8 o'clock, and in a short time the citizens of the small towns on the Northern Pacific between the Twin cities and Duluth, were listening to the silver doctrine as proclaimed by the standard bearer of that principle. Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, besides the regular party, were Chas. A. Tawne, candidate for Congress on farmers welcomed the nominee. A flag of large proportions and of home make, with a shovel handle as the staff, was waved enthusiastically in front of Mr. Bryan by an excited stalwart farmer as the nominee spoke. Mr. Bryan said that this country was large enough to attend to its own business and that it did not believe a foreign financial policy should be tolerated.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast Is Fair, With Little Change in Temperature.

Weather Bureau forecasts are:
For St. Louis and vicinity—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday; little change in temperature.

Missouri and Illinois—Fair Tuesday night and Wednesday; stationary temperature.

The storm in the East is, central this morning off the Southern New England coast. It has caused destructive gales along the coast, and during the past 24 hours its western edge has backed into the lower lakes. A moderate low area exists in the extreme Southwest, and another has appeared in Alberta. The pressure is highest in Wyoming.

There have been general rains from the Ohio Valley eastward, and showers in the extreme Southwest. Elsewhere fair weather prevailed.

The temperatures have generally fallen except in the West Gulf States.

UNIONS WITHIN UNIONS.

Printers' Convention Takes Action Against Secret Societies.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Oct. 12.—At the opening session of the forty-third session of the International Typographical Union an ironclad oath was administered to the delegates, binding them to do all in their power to cut down certain secret societies, known as the Brotherhood in St. Louis; the League and the Juanita in New York. It is claimed these secret societies exist in the unions in the above cities, to control the election of officers and the legislation of the unions. The action is in favor of certain subordinate unions throughout the country. The delegates are expected to be strict, but finally every delegate present and some fifty ex-delegates who were

HERR MOST THROWN OUT.

His Expression at an Anarchist Meeting Was Unpopular.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The American group of New York Anarchists held a joint political debate last night. It was arranged that the subject of the campaign first should be presented by a speaker advocating the election of Bryan, and he was to be answered by the English Anarchist, John Turner, who has been traveling through the West.

Herr Most was present. After two of the regular speeches had been made Miss Emma Goldman mounted the rostrum. "I am not in the 'free trade' currency," she said. "I wish, however, to mention something more important, the murder in Chicago, in 1887, of Herr Most."

There was a chorus of "throw him out," followed by a mixed scuffling, punching and kicking. As he was being thrown down the steps, Most, who is not now as friendly with Miss Goldman as he used to be, continued his vituperation.

"They used me as long as they could," he said, "but now they have taken up that woman."

ARMENIAN REFUGEES COMING.

If They Are Permitted to Land They Will Be Colonized.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 13.—Over hundred and fifty Armenian refugees, sufferers of the outrages of Aug. 23 and 24, are expected to reach New York this week.
If they are permitted to land under the immigration act, they will be taken in charge by Commander Booth-Tucker, the commander of the Salvation Army forces in the United States.
His interest in these poor people was enlivened through Miss Frances Willard, who asked the Salvation Army to give them a refuge in this country.

Commander Booth-Tucker, who is now here, says it is proposed to send them to a farm colony recently acquired at Ramsey, N. J., of which they will be the first occupants. The tract consists of forty acres.

The Army runs a similar plot of ground of 100 acres near San Francisco.

The Salvation Army in this country proposes to introduce, as fast as possible, all the social factors that have been so successful in England. Of these, the farm colony is one of the most interesting.

JOHN SUTTON DEAD.

He Tried to Lock Up a Watchman and Was Shot.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Oct. 13.—John Sutton, who was shot in an attempt to rescue a friend from the Edgerton night watchman a few weeks ago, died today. Sutton's mother was a cousin of Chauncey M. Depew. The young man stood high in Edgerton business circles. He was a well-to-do farmer. He had arrested a man and was locking him up. When Sutton and his friend went to rescue the prisoner and lock up the watchman, they had the watchman inside the building. Sutton was shot in the back by the infuriated watchman's leg. Sutton became insane and died from a breaking down of the heart. The doctor says that he acted solely in self defense.

LAST DAY OF REGISTRATION.

NEGLECT IT TO-DAY AND YOU LOSE YOUR VOTE.

THE NEGROES ARE ACTIVE.

Republicans Registering Ex-Convicts and Storing Up Trouble for Filley's Colored Friends.

The registration for the third and last day began at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. Considering the heavy registration of last week it was expected that Tuesday's enrollment would be light, but reports received at the Election Department up to 2 o'clock indicated the contrary.

From the Fifteenth and Seventeenth wards, where it is estimated that not less than 5,000 colored people registered the two previous days, came reports that the colored brother, directed by Uncle Filley's steering committee, was as active as ever. He was at the registry offices early and he registered.

In the West End, especially in the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth wards, it was getting up to surprisingly large figures. The former will run close to 9,000 by the time the books are closed.

The total up to Tuesday morning, according to the corrected and revised official figures, was 117,466, with Saturday's figures from two West End precincts missing. The estimates for Saturday range from 15,000 to 20,000. Taking it as 15,000, the grand total for the three days will be more than 132,000.

There were the usual complaints at the Election Department Tuesday morning. Foreign born voters who only recently took out papers had the usual trouble. The judges in some instances refused to register them, and in others where there were no papers or copies furnished the affidavits of the applicants were rejected.

A complicated case, with a humorous phase was reported from the Fourteenth ward. A citizen named McManus attempted to register and was asked his name. "McManus," he replied.

"What's your other name?" asked the judges.

"McManus is the only name I ever had or ever will have," he said. "I am a native-born American, and it is McManus still, but they used to call me Mac for short."

There was some more dialogue, but Mr. McManus was advised to get a Christian name or lose his vote. This stirred the

WHY WAS HE INTIMIDATED?

Gus Janish May Furnish a Clue to the Everman Mystery.

Gus Janish, who claims he was run out of Birken, Ill., because he knew too much about the Lizzie Everman mystery, is still in the detention ward at the City Hospital. He will not make a bit with the Belleville Grand-jury when it comes to throwing any additional light on the unfortunate girl's murder or suicide.

He is slow-witted and quite deaf, but Dr. Sutter says he is perfectly sane. Janish is a St. Louisan, but went over to Illinois when the harvesting began. Three weeks ago he drifted into Birken town, near Caseyville, and secured employment digging potatoes for Louis Koehler, a brother-in-law of Lizzie Everman.

He claims that Sunday while standing in front of Koehler's house, a heavy-set, well-dressed stranger approached him and told him he had better leave that part of the country as he knew too much about Lizzie Everman's murder.

Janish stood not upon the order of his going, but lit out at once. He walked to Caseyville, crossed the bridge and went to the Chestnut Street Station, where he asked the police protection.

The police sent him to the City Hospital for mental observation.

Monday night Deputy Sheriff Barnhill of Belleville, who is working on the Everman case, came to St. Louis and interviewed Janish.

He asked Dr. Sutter to hold him until he was wanted to testify before the Belleville Grand-jury.

Janish knows nothing about the Everman murder. He claims that while working at Koehler's he heard Mrs. Koehler say at the dinner table that no doubt Albert had returned and murdered Lizzie.

The man she referred to is Albert Schwab, who was the father of Lizzie Everman's child.

Another time he overheard Mrs. Koehler say that the family, for religious reasons, did not want the suicide theory to prevail.

Just how Janish overheard these remarks is inexplicable, as he appears to be almost stone deaf.

He does not know the man who ordered him away, but admits the Koehlers did not like him or treat him kindly on account of his deafness.

Deputy Sheriff Barnhill thinks that something may develop if the man who intimidated Janish can be located.

INNES' MARTIAL STRAINS.

A Military Band Concert in Honor of the Sheridan Guards.

The Sheridan Guards, Co. F. N. G. M., held forth at the Exposition last night and thousands of their friends turned out to wear their colors and applaud their drill between concerts.

Mr. Innes furnished a programme of martial music in their honor, winding up the first concert with the William Tell overture and beginning the 9 o'clock programme with

SOME FUN IN REGISTRATION DAY DOINGS.

To-night's programme follows:

Miss Emma Crane's cooking demonstration this afternoon will be on Braided German Hams, Cinnamon Rolls and Corn Cakes. Help Mr. Innes as an entree, and she gave the following recipe:

Chicken Legs—Put out carefully the tendons from the legs of an uncooked chicken, then cut off the legs and remove the bones by running a sharp knife between the bone and flesh. Mix one-half cup of chopped almonds, four chopped olives, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, one teaspoon of melted butter. Stuff the space left by the bone and place the legs in a baking pan, put on each a small piece of butter and just a little water in the bottom of the pan and bake about thirty minutes. Serve with brown sauce; garnish with pastry border.

Brown Sauce—Brown one slice of onion in one tablespoonful of butter, remove the onion and add one tablespoonful of flour, brown again, then add one cup of boiling water and stir constantly until it thickens. Add a half teaspoonful of kitchen bouquet, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper.

Let's of Chicken—Take off the skin from the breast of an uncooked chicken, remove the wing fast to the meat. Cut out part of the wing, leaving portion of the meat as a handle, trimming it clean from meat. Arrange these in a baking pan with the bones standing up, put a little water in the bottom of the pan, lay a slice of onion, a stalk of celery, a teaspoonful of salt, dust the outside with pepper and bake one hour.

Cream Mushroom Sauce—Smooth together one cup of cream, one-half cup of butter and one of flour; do not brown; add one cup of mushrooms, allow the mushrooms to become thoroughly heated, but do not cook them.

THE THEATERS.

"An American Beauty." Lillian Russell's new presentation at the Century, is something of a circus with the fair Lillian as the fat girl of the side show to some people, but to others, and many of them, the peerless $10.00 beauty.

In the Brette Gabrielle Dalmont (Miss Russell) is an American beauty, with a villa at Newport, and several millions on the side. While out horseback riding she is espied by Bangie, Budd & Bingle, proprietors of "The greatest show on or off the earth." They unanimously decide she is just the girl for their show to pose as the prize beauty and ride the elephant.

Being circus people with a bank roll, they don't hesitate to ask her. She is so flattered and impressed that she gives a circus ride at her villa, and smothered in diamonds, rides on the elephant's neck, not under contract, but as a social pastime.

This conceit gives a flavor of the sawdust ring and the vaudeville to the first two acts. And a rollicking good time is made for Miss Russell's managers have surrounded her with a clever company of specialty artists.

The production is a pleasing surprise to those who have paid year after year for the privilege of feasting on Wednesday night beauty during intervals of torture or carrying on their part of the performance. "An American Beauty" would be entertaining with the beautiful prima donna left out.

This is not meant to detract from Miss Russell's share of credit. She was never sprightly or in better voice, and that is a compliment to her pluck, as well as her talent, for she laughed and romped while her heart was heavy with memories of her father. Her role is not built to give her continued dominance of the stage, but she realizes to the utmost. She has grave songs and gay, even to a risky little French ditty, given with charming abandon.

Jerome Sykes as the head of the firm of Bangie, Budd & Bingle, has most of the running through the performance. His partners are Catherine Linyard and William Cameron, the young man with the whale-bone back.

There are Sadie Kirby and Nettie Lyford as two Casino girls, who sing of the chaplains and kick holes in the air; Willard Simms, a typical "Johnnie," with a song about the girls in the Amazon march that the audience couldn't get enough of, and Alexander Clark's ballad of "Key Eisenstein," that rings in the ears over night.

There is humor in the daring absurdity of "An American Beauty." The circus people and the Casino girls happen in on the Newport folks without producing social insurrection. The lady of the house listens with detached attention to the inducements of the circus people to get her name on their contract, then everyone breaks into enthusiastic song about the glories of the sawdust ring.

The love story of the plot is furnished by Richard Grenville, the Earl of Beverly in disguise, who loves the American Beauty, but wishes to win her without the aid of his title. With the assistance of Miriam, an Oriental woman, he charms her with a magical flower and a love song for her while under the flower's spell, and tells her the fair lady is a girl named Beverly and has duped him. He is in disgust, but they meet again in the evening. Beverly breaks the bank and the American Beauty the same night.

Mr. Rickie Ling made an interesting looking love, but he was in mighty poor voice. Gustave Kerker, who is responsible for the musical architecture of the opera, has not produced anything strikingly original, but his fingers are bright, his love songs tuneful and the choruses effective. The concerted number closing the first act is unusually strong. Canary & Lederer are responsible for the stage production. This means pretty girls, brilliant costumes and stage pictures full of life and color.

The only matinee will be given Saturday. To an audience that packed the lower part of the Olympic, but did not pack its upper portions, Clarence Olcott, on Monday night, gave "The Irish Artist." It has been seen here more than once, and it is not necessary to give its plot. It does not differ in respect from the usual Irish comedy-drama, which serves as a vehicle in which to haul songs around the country. It is not known that Mr. Olcott has claimed to be a great actor. He is too honest. He asks for public patronage because of his voice. The public gives it its approval. Olcott acts fairly and sings beautifully. That is more than can be said for many others. While his support is generally good and though distinctions are invidious, it must be said that he has one woman with him who is an actress to her finger tips. Her name is Kitty Coleman and it will pay students of histrionism to look at and listen to her.

WILL GRANT A HALF HOLIDAY.

FIVE LARGE FIRMS HAVE ALREADY PROMISED TO DO SO.

THEIR WORKMEN CAN VOTE.

Other Firms Have Promised to Let All Their Men Have Plenty of Time on Election Day.

The following manufacturing firms have promised the Post-Dispatch that they will give their men a holiday on election day: Rumsey & Sikemeier Co., 515 North Main street.

William A. Orr Shoe Co., 814 Washington avenue.

H. W. Peters Shoe Co., 1101 Washington avenue.

Rainwater-Donaghy Hat Co., 910 Washington avenue.

Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co., 824 Washington avenue.

The article published in Sunday's Post-Dispatch about the election day holiday for workmen on election day is already bearing fruit. Of the largest employers in the city, who prior to the publication of the article, had no plans for election day, have now decided to give their men at least half a day on Nov. 3.

The necessity for some such step is more apparent than in any previous Presidential year, owing to the limited time allotted the workmen to vote. The great majority of daily toilers are required to reach their places of employment before 7 o'clock, the hour at which the polls open. In former years this did not make much difference, as the polls were open after working hours.

This year they will be closed at 5 o'clock. Where large numbers of men are employed, it will be most impossible to give all of them time to cast their ballots during the hour.

Employers who attempt to do so will find that the loss of the men's time and services will be quite as great as the cost of giving them time to vote. Since the Post-Dispatch began the agitation for a half holiday for workmen, a number of employers have thought the matter over, and some of them have already decided to make the concession asked, while others may be counted on to reach the same decision.

A Post-Dispatch reporter called on a number of manufacturers and asked them what facilities they intended to give the men for casting their ballots on election day in view of the fact that the polls would close at 5 o'clock.

Henry Sikemeier of the Rumsey-Sikemeier Manufacturing Co. said: "You may rest assured that we will give our men a holiday on election day. Our men are given all the time they ask for. If they get down late in the morning, they are paid for it. We have been in the habit of giving men who had no opportunity to vote in the morning, time to do so during the day. We realize that the conditions this year are peculiar and unprecedented. The Post-Dispatch's idea of a half holiday seems to be the best solution. Unless some very unexpected business development interfered with our plans we will close our store during the afternoon on election day. Personally I think the time allowed under the present election law is totally inadequate. The polls should be kept open until 8 o'clock at least, and the men should be paid for the extra time."

William A. Orr, President of the William A. Orr Shoe Co., said: "I can promise a half holiday." H. W. Peters, President of the Peters Shoe Co., said: "I can promise a half holiday." Rainwater-Donaghy Hat Co., said: "The Post-Dispatch's request in behalf of the workmen is a very reasonable one. We will give our men a whole holiday on election day."

J. S. Kelley, of the Kelley-Goodfellow Shoe Co., said: "We will give our men a half holiday on election day. We will give them an extra opportunity to vote on account of the limited time afforded by the new law. We will give half of our force a holiday in the forenoon and let which will mean a half holiday for all the men in our employ."

LAST REGISTRATION DAY. Tuesday, Oct. 13, is the last registration day in St. Louis. Voters who did not register on Saturday or Tuesday of last week must register Tuesday, Oct. 13, or lose their votes in the presidential election. The registration offices will be open Tuesday from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

WILL SEE THE PLAY.

Newsboys Happy Over the Prospect of Going to Havlin's.

The Post-Dispatch newsboys, who have been invited to attend Havlin's Theater in a body Thursday night and witness a performance of "Down in Dixie," are enthusiastic over the treat in store for them.

All day Monday the office of the Post-Dispatch circulation manager was besieged by the boys who announced their determination to attend the performance. They wanted to be sure they knew the particulars so they could comply with all requirements.

There are about 1,600 newsboys who sell the Post-Dispatch in St. Louis and suburbs. The gallery at Havlin's is not calculated to contain such a crowd, but Mr. Garen, the manager, says that while he may not be able to give all a seat in the front row, he will put every urchin in a place where he can see and hear.

Mr. Garen of the Post-Dispatch circulation manager, arranged for the boys to meet in Post-Dispatch headquarters at 10 o'clock, headed by the Pickett-Band, was formed. The boys marched to the theater, where they were supplied with the bit of past board that will entitle them to witness the performance.

UNTOLD TORTURES.

Agony Greater Than Any Horror Portrayed by Dante.

Impure Blood and Disordered Nerves Lead to Gravel Disease. Dr. Greene's Nervura, the Star of Hope, That Means Life, Health and Happiness.

How often we hear the expression, "my life is miserable," used among our friends and acquaintances as we pass through life. And why is life miserable? Because the speaker is troubled with dyspepsia, liver or kidney complaint, constipation, neuralgia, rheumatism, nerve weakness, or other equally distressing and harassing afflictions. What does the trouble arise from?

In nine cases out of ten from weak nerves and impure blood. The organs are all right, the machinery is in perfect order, but the motive force is lacking in quality and quantity. The blood requires augmentation and purification. The nerves demand more strength and vigor. By what means can this be effected? By the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great blood renovator and nerve tonic, the incomparable health producer which never fails.

Easy to take, always effective, bringing back appetite, strength and vitality. Get it today. Try it and at once begin to get well.

Remember that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the prescription and discovery of the well-known Dr. J. C. Greene of 35 West 14th St., New York, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and hence of necessity is perfectly adapted to cure just these complaints. An added value is the fact that Dr. Greene can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

WILL FIGHT HARD FOR THE SPOILS.

REPUBLICAN FACTIONS READY FOR THE PRIMARIES.

TROLL HAS HIS TROUBLES.

John Henry Pohlman Wants His Job and It Means "De Ole Man."

The Republican factions in the various wards where there are opposing delegations for Wednesday's primaries have done their fighting and are ready for the battle that precedes the city convention.

The polls will open at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and close at 8 p. m. There will be opposing delegations in nine wards—the Fifth, Seventh, Thirteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-seventh. The feeling in some of them has reached the stage that makes trouble. This is especially true in the Twenty-seventh ward, where the Republicans in the Twenty-seventh ward have been nearly caused a tragedy last Friday evening.

There are minor issues involved in the primary, but the main fight is for the Shrivley nomination. Henry Troll, the incumbent, feels that the party owes him another term and that he ought to have it in compensation for the work he has done. The Sheriff should have two terms. It is only a two-year office and the law is so framed that a man should not be allowed to make a good stake out of another term.

The Upper Ten, under whose auspices the Shrivley race, has taken the form of a political philosophy and a very far-reaching ambition. The difference in rank is so slight as to be practically undetectable. The swains who swagger in the Upper Ten are also bright lights in the Four Hundred, and they are so intermingled that it is hard to tell where one begins and the other ends.

It was the exercise of this extraordinary power, the exercise of the control of the convention which met last June to choose the delegates to Springfield, that has caused the trouble.

Uncle Filley will have absolute control of the city convention, which meets at the Merchants' League Club Thursday morning, whether he is there in person or not. There is a general understanding that he will determine whether it will be Troll or Pohlman. At first he was with John Henry, but since then Carl Ziegenhein has become demonstrative and threatened to hoist the emblem of insurrection if Troll were turned down.

The leaders are at a loss to know just where Uncle Filley is on the Shrivley proposition. There is next to the Shrivley race, much speculation on the outcome of the scramble for the local nomination. There are five candidates for Circuit Judges to be chosen, and there is a big field of candidates.

The list of the applicants for the judgeship is a long one. It includes the names of G. A. Finkelnburg and Hugo Muench. There are two of these considered in the estimation of the judgeship. The list includes the names of G. A. Finkelnburg and Hugo Muench. There are two of these considered in the estimation of the judgeship.

Coroner Walt is slated for renomination for the City Register will go to Henry Trotter. This committee could be easily gulched by its monstrous head of silk and feathers. The officers of the club were everywhere.

SLEW HIMSELF IN THE WOOD SHED.

HERMAN DEUCHART'S WIFE FOUND HIS CORPSE. DISAPPEARED IN THE NIGHT. Prostrated by Heat Goes by the Suicide Route.

Another German Who Was Recently Prostrated by Heat Goes by the Suicide Route.

HERMAN DEUCHART shot himself in the right temple early Tuesday morning. The bullet pierced his brain and he died instantly.

Deuchart was a German, 41 years old, and had for many years been employed as a box-maker in the Anheuser-Busch Brewery. With his wife and stepson he resided at 288 Lamp avenue.

No motive for the rash act is apparent. There was no family trouble. He was married to his present wife fourteen years ago. She was a widow, Mary Miller, and had four children. They are all married now save her son, Michael, who is 20 years old. Deuchart had four children by his first marriage, but they are all in the old country.

He had always been good until during the heated term last summer, when he was sick for a few days. He recovered, but he was not the same. He was not as cheerful as usual, and he complained of feeling ill and did not sleep.

He was able to walk around and did not seem particularly depressed. At 8:30 o'clock Monday night he went to bed as usual, and immediately went to sleep.
